BE A PIONEER OF ENLIGHTENED ENTERPRISE

WELCOME

Across every sector and in organisations of all types, people are beginning to recognise a simple truth: the old ways of doing things are no longer working. The challenges of the 21st century - climate breakdown, inequality, social division, and the erosion of trust - demand more enlightened approaches.

At the Enlightened Enterprise Academy, we are building a global community of pioneers committed to transcending today's challenges. Our members come from business, government, civil society, education, and beyond. What unites us is the conviction that enterprise, whether commercial, social, public, or not-for-profit, must serve a higher purpose: dignity, stewardship, and the flourishing of future generations.

Becoming a member is not about being a passive observer. It is about stepping into an active role in shaping the future. Central to this are our Participatory Learning Networks (PLNs). They allow you to join others in re-imagining enterprise, sharing insights across disciplines, and working together to create practical solutions to our most urgent challenges.

I warmly invite you to join us. Together, as pioneers of enlightened enterprise, we can ensure that organisations of every kind become a force for human dignity, ecological regeneration, and shared prosperity. Be a Pioneer. Be part of more enlightened approaches to enterprise.

ABOUT THE ACADEMY

VISION & PURPOSE

The Enlightened Enterprise Academy is a global Participatory Learning Network (PLN) dedicated to transforming the way organisations of every kind think and act.

We exist to connect pioneers across sectors, disciplines, and geographies,. And to create the tools, insights, and spaces needed for people to co-create more enlightened forms of enterprise.

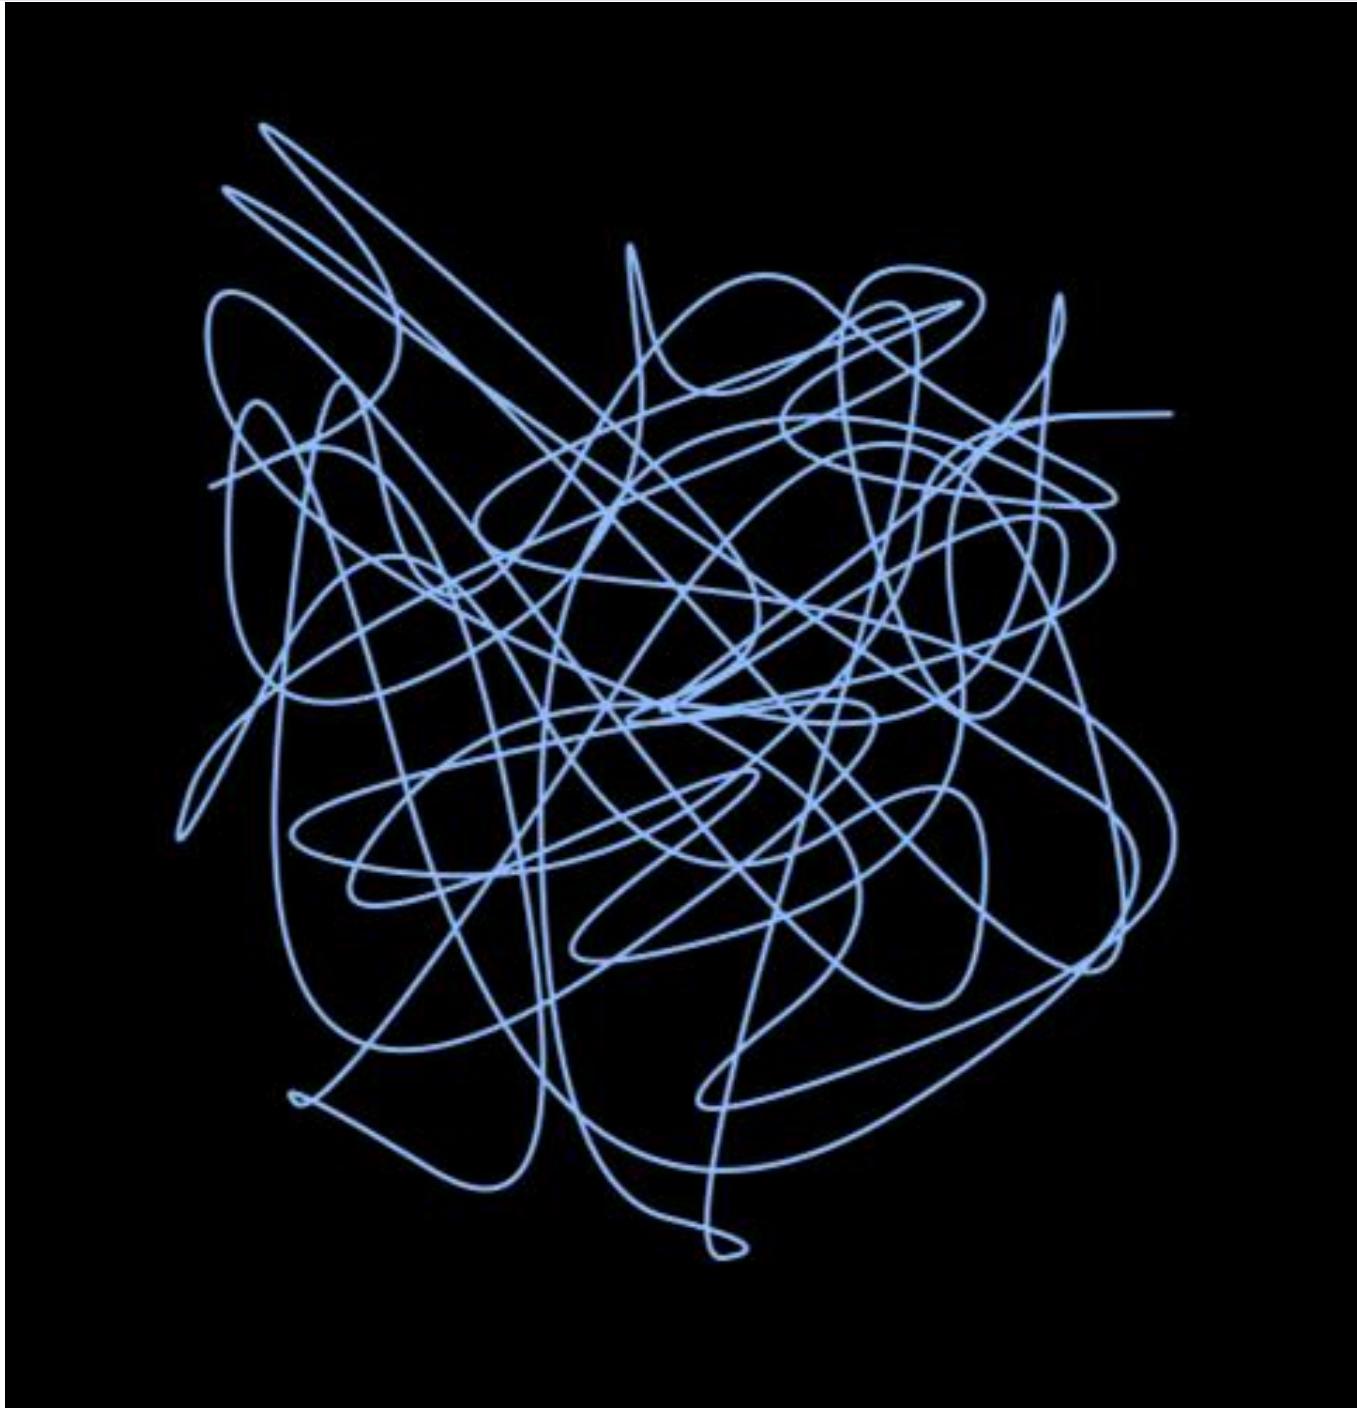

WHY NOW ?

The crises of our time are symptoms of deeper structural flaws in how enterprise is conceived and practised.

Fragmented institutions, outdated models, and siloed expertise cannot keep pace with the complexity of the 21st century.

It is complexity, volatility and uncertainty that is causing the “messy” and “wicked” problems referred to as the Polycrisis and the Metacrisis.

The Academy brings thinkers and practitioners together in a multi-disciplinary way, breaking down barriers, challenging assumptions, and co-creating solutions that are practical as well as visionary.

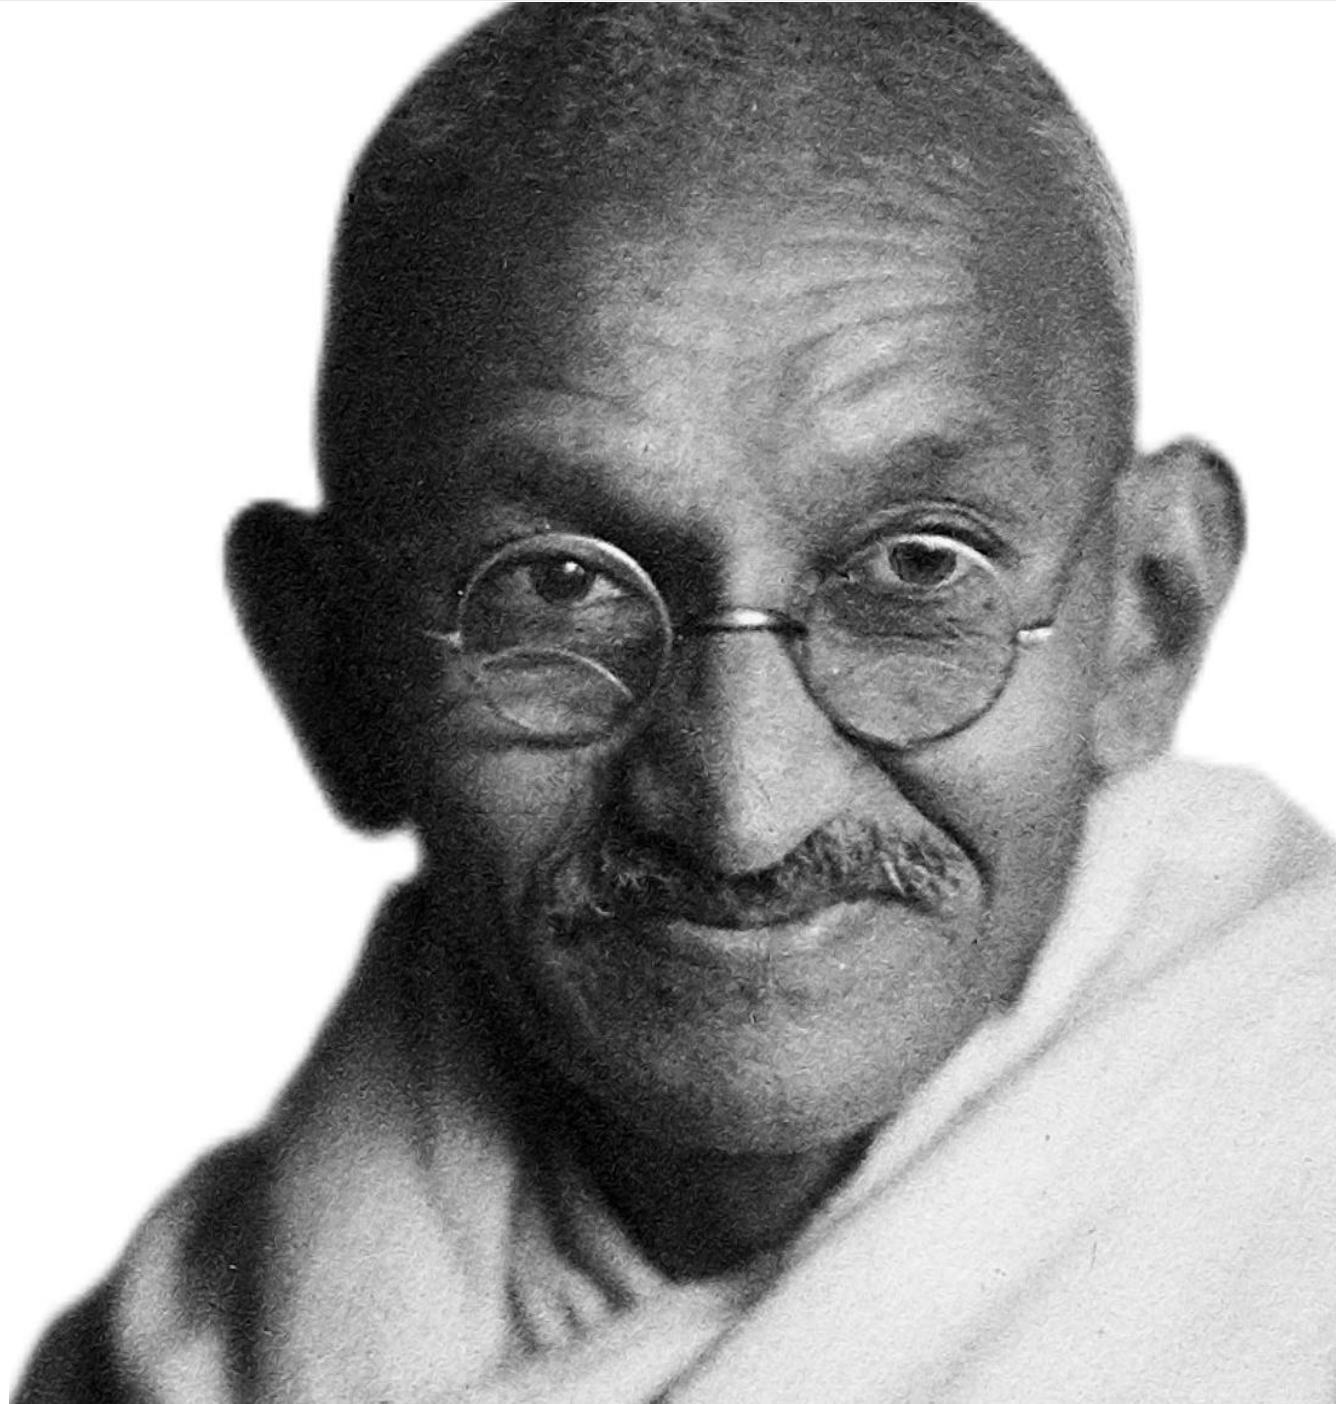

BEING A PIONEER

A PIONEER ?

“A pioneer is someone who ventures into new territory; curious, courageous, and willing to challenge old assumptions.”

Across history, pioneers have been at the forefront of progress: advancing human rights, shaping more just societies, and creating bold alternatives to the status quo.

To be a pioneer today is to carry that same spirit into the way we think, act, and organise.

PIONEERS OF ENTERPRISE

The Enlightened Enterprise Academy uses the term “pioneer” deliberately. We believe enterprise, whether in business, government, education, or civil society, needs innovators who can rethink how things are done.

Pioneers often work across sectors to achieve a mission. And man’s greatest achievements have almost always required collaboration across the sectors.

A pioneer of enterprise is not defined by sector or role, but by mindset. Someone prepared to explore better ways, grounded in dignity, trust, cooperation, and stewardship.

STRATEGIC LEARNING

In a world defined by accelerating uncertainty, institutional fragility, and cascading crises, Strategic Learning: Our Way Through Uncertainty, Complexity, and Crises offers a powerful and practical way forward, argues Paul Barnett, Founder of the Enlightened Enterprise Academy in his new book. It reveals how to navigate complexity with clarity, diagnose the real causes of persistent problems, and build the collective intelligence needed for meaningful transformation. It is both a guidebook and a manifesto for a new era of strategic learning-driven leadership.

Rich with real-world applications, from organisational renewal to public-sector reform and societal resilience, Strategic Learning equips readers with the tools and mindset to thrive amid disruption. Barnett integrates systems thinking, organisational learning, and Participatory Learning Networks (PLNs) into a coherent architecture that empowers people at every level to see more clearly, think more deeply, and act more wisely. Whether you are a leader, policymaker, educator, strategist, innovator, or simply someone searching for a more enlightened path through turbulence, this book will inspire and enable you to participate in the urgent work of shaping a more adaptive, humane, and sustainable future.

PLNs

Participatory Learning Networks (PLNs) bring people together across disciplines and sectors to learn, act, and co-create solutions to problems and realise opportunities.

The concept of Participatory Learning Networks (PLNs), introduced by Paul Barnett, Founder of the Enlightened Enterprise Academy offers an alternative to traditional models of education or professional development, PLNs are not about knowledge being handed down from experts to passive learners. Instead, they are designed as dynamic, collaborative ecosystems in which everyone participates as both teacher and learner. They bring together diverse experiences, disciplines, and perspectives, enabling participants to co-create insights and solutions that no single viewpoint could generate alone.

What makes PLNs different is the way they blend learning and practice. They are not separate from the real world but embedded within it, focused on the challenges, opportunities, and “wicked problems” that organisations and societies face today.

PROGRAMMES

Our programmes (courses and workshops) bring together leading global thinkers and practitioners to help leaders navigate complexity, uncertainty and manage meaningful change.

At the Enlightened Enterprise Academy, we design and deliver programmes that bring world-class expertise to leaders and organisations seeking to navigate complexity, build resilience, and lead with dignity. Each programme is developed in partnership with distinguished faculty and thought leaders whose work has shaped global understanding in their fields.

We have already run programmes on Leading with Dignity, created in association with Harvard Professor Donna Hicks, an internationally recognised authority on conflict resolution who worked for a decade alongside Archbishop Desmond Tutu and is author of the acclaimed books Dignity and Leading with Dignity.

We also developed the programme Critical Systems Thinking and the Management of Complexity in collaboration with Professor Michael C. Jackson, founder and former Dean of Hull University Business School.

And many more programmes are planned as we grow our global faculty.

The Enlightened Enterprise Academy's Salon reimagines the 18th-century Paris Salons for a global audience, uniting the sciences, arts, and humanities in inclusive dialogue online and offline.

The Paris Salons were among the most influential gatherings of the Enlightenment. They helped to shape the intellectual and cultural climate of the Enlightenment, providing a forum where ideas could be tested across disciplines which informed one another.

The Salon of the Enlightened Enterprise Academy is both a tribute to the past and a step toward a new kind of global Enlightenment, one that values the interplay of multiple disciplines, honours diverse cultural perspectives, and connects people everywhere in the shared pursuit of understanding and transformation.

The magazine is also a home for insights emerging from our Participatory Learning Networks (PLNs), ensuring that the learning and discoveries generated in those communities are made available to a wider audience.

For members of the Academy, subscription to the magazine is included as a benefit, alongside free access to The Salon and other membership privileges.

The magazine embodies our vision of combining thought leadership with practical insight, making it both a window into the Academy's work and a forum for dialogue across disciplines, sectors, and regions.
